Reading the World in 1200

The Global Tapestry

└─ Reading the World in 1200

Reading the World in 1200

Unit 1 surveys the major regions of the world around 1200 to 1450, just before the great connecting networks of Unit 2. Its purpose is comparison: by the end you should be able to say how any two of these societies were governed, what held them together, and how they made their living.

- How is the state organised? Who rules, through what officials, and paid for how?
- What belief system shapes society? Religion supplies law, education, and legitimacy in every region here.
- What is the economic base? Agriculture almost everywhere, but with very different labour systems and levels of trade.

East Asia

The Global Tapestry

└─ East Asia

East Asia

Government ran through a bureaucracy 官僚体系 staffed by the civil service examination 科举制度, which recruited officials on merit and gave the state unusual administrative depth.

The Song engine

This is the benchmark every other 1200 state is compared against: recruitment by merit rather than birth, paid for by a commercialised agrarian economy

3 Dar al-Islam

Dar al-Islam

As the Abbasid Caliphate 阿拔斯哈里发国 fragmented, new Islamic political entities emerged, most of them Turkic 突厥人 in origin – among them the Seljuk Empire 塞尔柱帝国, the Mamluk sultanate of Egypt 埃及马穆鲁克苏丹国, and the Delhi Sultanate 德里苏丹国.

Muslim rule continued to expand across Afro-Eurasia through military expansion, merchant activity 商人活动, and the work of missionaries 传教士, especially Sufis 苏非派, whose adaptable practice helped Islam spread.

Three routes, three kinds of evidence

Islam spread by three routes: military expansion, merchant activity 商人活动, and Sufi 苏非派 missionaries.

4 South and Southeast Asia

South and Southeast Asia

State formation showed the unit's theme of continuity and diversity: the Delhi Sultanate ruled much of the north, Vijayanagara 维查耶纳伽尔 arose in the south, and in Southeast Asia the sea-based Majapahit 满者伯夷 and the land-based Khmer Empire 高棉帝国 organised power in different ways.

The Americas and Africa

The Global Tapestry
The Americas and Africa

The same three questions, asked of six regions

	East Asia	East of Islam	South and SE Asia	The Americas	Africa	Europe
How is this state organized?	imperialism based on Confucianism	the Islamic caliphate after the Muslims	island states and regional kingdoms	city states, culture and social systems	kingdoms and empires	fragmented polities
What social system shapes society?	Confucianism	Islamic law	Hinduism, Buddhism	indigenous societies	Christianity	Christianity
What is the economic base?	agriculture	trade and commerce	trade and commerce	agriculture, trade	agriculture, trade	agriculture with trade

a comparison answer takes ONE row and TWO columns

Ask the same three questions of each region: who held power, how was it paid for, and what made it last?

The Americas and Africa

The Americas and Africa

In the Americas, state systems showed continuity, innovation, and diversity: the Maya 玛雅 city-states, the Mexica 墨西哥人 (Aztec) with tribute-based expansion, and the Inca 印加 with a centralised administration, labour obligation, and road system.

In Africa, state systems likewise varied: Great Zimbabwe 大津巴布韦 grew on gold and cattle, Ethiopia 埃塞俄比亚 was a long-established Christian kingdom, and the Hausa Kingdoms 豪萨城邦 sat on trans-Saharan trade routes.

Europe

The Global Tapestry
Europe

Europe

Europe was politically fragmented 政治上分裂, characterised by decentralised monarchies and by feudalism 封建制度 - a system of land held in exchange for service. Monarchs slowly consolidated power, but nothing here approached the administrative reach of Song China.

Europe was largely agricultural, dependent on free and coerced labour 自由与强制劳动, including serfdom 农奴制.

Comparison in the Period

The Global Tapestry
↳ Comparison in the Period

Comparison in the Period

The unit's reasoning skill is comparison 比较. The productive comparisons are structural rather than evaluative:

- Centralised administration (Song China, Inca) against fragmented or decentralised rule (Europe, post-Abbasid Islamic states).
- Recruitment by examination against recruitment by birth.
- States funded by tribute (Mexico) against states funded by taxation (Song China).

Exam tips

- Learn each region through the same three questions – state, belief system, economy – so any comparison question already has a structure.
- Song China is the benchmark: examination-based bureaucracy, commercialised agriculture, and cultural influence on neighbours.
- For Dar al-Islam, remember the pattern is fragmentation into new states plus continued expansion by trade and Sufi missionaries.
- Give a named state for the Americas and Africa. Mexica tribute, Inca labour obligation, Mali and Great Zimbabwe gold are the reliable examples.
- Europe's distinguishing features are fragmentation, feudalism, and coerced agricultural labour.
- Write comparisons as one feature across two societies, never as two separate descriptions.

The Global Tapestry
↳ Comparison in the Period

Belief systems, by what they did for authority

REGION	BELIEF SYSTEM	WHAT IT DID FOR AUTHORITY
Song China	Neo-Confucianism	ordered society by obligation — filial piety, and deference expected of women
Dar al-Islam	Islam	gave rulers of very different origins one shared source of legitimacy
Europe	Christianity, alongside Jewish and Muslim communities	sanctioned a fragmented order in which lords, not a state, held power
South and Southeast Asia	Hinduism, Buddhism and Islam together	Hindu and Sufi devotion crossed the boundaries rulers drew

- Centralised administration (Song China, Inca) against fragmented or decentralised rule (Europe, post-Abbasid Islamic states).
- Recruitment by examination against recruitment by birth.
- States funded by tribute (Mexico) against states funded by taxation (Song China).

Recap

The Global Tapestry
↳ Recap

Unit 1 – key takeaways

1 Regions

state, belief, economy – the same three questions

2 Song

exam bureaucracy; commercialised agriculture

3 Islam

new states plus expansion by trade and Sufis

4 Named states

Mexica tribute; Inca labour; Mali / Great Zimbabwe gold

Check yourself

- 1 What three questions structure any regional comparison?
- 2 Why is Song China the benchmark?
- 3 Name one American and one African state with a mechanism.
- 4 Name Europe's three distinguishing features.

Answers: state / belief / economy ▪ exams and commercial agriculture ▪ Mexica tribute, Mali gold ▪ fragmentation, feudalism, coerced labour
