GAC030 Psychology: Additional Outcome Notes

GAC Psychology · Vocabulary in context

Word	Example
Intelligence /ɪn'telɪdʒəns/	There are many theories of intelligence.
General intelligence /'dʒenərəl ɪn'telɪdʒəns/	General intelligence is one ability that helps with many tasks.
Fluid intelligence /'fluːɪd ɪn'telɪdʒəns/	Solving a new puzzle uses fluid intelligence.
Crystallised intelligence /'krɪstəlaɪzd ɪn'telɪdʒəns/	Knowing many words is crystallised intelligence.
Multiple intelligences /'mʌltɪpl ɪn'telɪdʒənsɪz/	Multiple intelligences theory says people are clever in different ways.
Triarchic theory /traɪ'ɑːkɪk 'θɪəri/	Triarchic theory includes creative, practical and analytical intelligence.
Development /dɪ'veləpmənt/	Development continues all through life.
Adolescence /ˌædə'lesəns/	Adolescence is the time between childhood and adulthood.
psychosocial theory /ˌsaɪkəʊ'səʊʃəl 'θɪəri/	Erikson's psychosocial theory describes eight life stages.
Identity /aɪ'dentɪti/	Teenagers often explore their identity.
Intimacy /'ɪntɪməsi/	Trust helps build intimacy in a close relationship.
Generativity /ˌdʒenərə'tɪvɪti/	Helping younger people is an example of generativity.

exercises.lol exercises.com.cn

Word	Example
formal operational thinking /'fɔːml ˌɒpə'reɪʃənl 'θɪŋkɪŋ/	Thinking about "what if" questions shows formal operational thinking. "what if"