Exercise walk-through

1.2
Paper 1 skills: the unseen ethnographic text

International Baccalaureate · IB Diploma · Social and Cultural Anthropology · HL

Thinking like an anthropologist

- Ethnocentrism : judging other cultures by the standards of your own, as Miner's readers did before they saw the joke.
- Cultural relativism : trying to understand a practice within its own cultural context before you judge it. (Understanding is not the same as approving.)
- Reflexivity : thinking about how your own background (age, gender, nationality, class) shapes what you see and what people tell you.
- Comparison : anthropology compares many societies, so that assumptions that seem natural in one place become visible.

Answering Paper 1

- Paper 1 gives you an unseen text: an extract from an ethnography.
- The first questions ask you to identify and explain what the text shows; the last asks one of the course's big questions, such as the IB's sample: *How are we the same as and different from each other?
- Discuss with references to at least two sources of ethnographic material and examples from the passage.*
- 1.

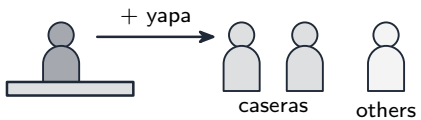

Common errors

- Judging another group's customs by your own (ethnocentrism) instead of asking what they mean to the people who practise them.
- Treating cultural relativism as "anything goes"; it is a method for understanding, not a rule that every practice is good.
- Writing about a concept in general without anchoring it in the text or an ethnographic example.

Exercises 2.1·2.2

2.1 Describe the practice of the yapa in the text. [2]

2.2 Explain how the yapa creates belonging between sellers and caseras. [3]

Exercises 2.1·2.2

2.1 Describe the practice of the yapa in the text. [2]

2.1

the seller adds a small extra amount, e.g. a potato or herbs, to the bags of regular customers (caseras); other buyers pay the same price but receive no extra

2.2 Explain how the yapa creates belonging between sellers and caseras. [3]

2.2

the extra is given only to regular customers, which marks them as insiders; the gift creates an obligation to return and buy again (reciprocity, Mauss); so a commercial exchange becomes a lasting personal relationship

Exercises 2.3·2.4

2.3 Explain how the text shows change in exchange, and one possible cause. [4]

2.4 Compare the exchange in the text with an ethnography you have studied (author, group, place). Give one similarity and one difference. [6]

Exercises 2.3·2.4

2.3 Explain how the text shows change in exchange, and one possible cause. [4]

2.3

personal market exchange based on relationships is being replaced, for some, by impersonal supermarket shopping; evidence: “for people who do not know anyone”; younger buyers shop there; a cause, e.g. migration of new people into town who have no market ties; or convenience, fixed prices, wider choice, changing tastes of the young

2.4 Compare the exchange in the text with an ethnography you have studied (author, group, place). Give one similarity and one difference. [6] an ethnography named with author, group and place, e.g. Malinowski, Trobriand Islands, the Kula; similarity explained, e.g. both show exchange creating lasting relationships; difference explained, e.g. the Kula is ceremonial with no market price, while the yapa is part of commercial trade; concept used in the comparison

Exercise 3.1

3.1 (Paper 1 style.) Using the concept of exchange, compare and contrast the ways in which relationships are created in the unseen text and in one ethnography you have studied. [15]

Exercise 3.1

3.1 (Paper 1 style.) Using the concept of exchange, compare and contrast the ways in which relationships are created in the unseen text and in one ethnography you have studied. [15]

3.1

Mark with the markbands: [13-15] clearly focused on the question, key concepts used accurately, ethnographic material in detail (author, place, group), different perspectives and theories evaluated, well-developed critical analysis, different perspectives evaluated, a reasoned conclusion; [10-12] focused, mostly accurate knowledge, analysis with some evaluation; [7-9] some focus, relevant knowledge, mostly narrative or description with limited analysis; [4-6] little focus, limited knowledge, mostly narrative; [1-3] little understanding of the question. Points that may be included: accurate use of the unseen text with short quotations; an ethnography in detail: author, group, place, date; concept of exchange explained: gift, reciprocity, market; Mauss on obligation to give, receive and repay; similarities explained; differences explained, e.g. commercial vs ceremonial, personal vs impersonal; change and power in both cases; a clear conclusion on what the comparison shows
