1.2 Paper 1 skills: the unseen ethnographic text

Name: _____ Class: _____ Date: _____ Total: 30 marks

KEY WORDS unseen text • exchange • reciprocity • gift • belonging

Objective

Build the Paper 1 skills: read an unseen ethnographic text, describe what it shows, analyse it with key concepts, and compare it with an ethnography you have studied.

You must be able to:

- describe the people, place and practice in an unseen text
- analyse the text with one or two key concepts
- compare the text with an ethnography you have studied
- use precise evidence from the text
- plan a comparative answer

1 Key knowledge and worked examples

Unseen text (written for practice)

In a market town in the highlands, women sell vegetables from blankets on the ground. Each seller has regular customers, caseras, who always buy from her. She adds an extra potato or a handful of herbs, the yapa, to their bags. Buyers who are not caseras pay the same price but receive no yapa. Several sellers said that a supermarket opened last year "for people who do not know anyone". Younger buyers increasingly shop there.

How to answer

1. Describe: who, where, what practice; quote short phrases.
2. Analyse: apply a concept (e.g. exchange, belonging, change). Say what the practice does for people.
3. Compare: with an ethnography you know: author, group, place, and one similarity and one difference.

Worked analysis. The yapa turns a sale into a relationship: a small gift creates obligation and loyalty, so the customer returns. This links to Marcel Mauss' argument in The Gift (1925) that gifts create obligations to receive and to repay. The supermarket shows change: impersonal exchange ("for people who do not know anyone") is replacing personal ties.

2 Practice

2.1 Describe the practice of the yapa in the text. [2]

2.2 Explain how the yapa creates belonging between sellers and caseras. [3]

2.3 Explain how the text shows change in exchange, and one possible cause. [4]

2.4 Compare the exchange in the text with an ethnography you have studied (author, group, place). Give one similarity and one difference. [6]

3 Exam-style questions

3.1 (Paper 1 style.) Using the concept of exchange, compare and contrast the ways in which relationships are created in the unseen text and in one ethnography you have studied. [15]

Solutions

Marking: M1 a correct method, A1 the correct answer, B1 an independent mark.

Each answer shows the steps, then the result.

2.1

the seller adds a small extra amount, e.g. a potato or herbs, to the bags of regular customers (caseras); other buyers pay the same price but receive no extra

2.2

the extra is given only to regular customers, which marks them as insiders; the gift creates an obligation to return and buy again (reciprocity, Mauss); so a commercial exchange becomes a lasting personal relationship

2.3

personal market exchange based on relationships is being replaced, for some, by impersonal supermarket shopping; evidence: "for people who do not know anyone"; younger buyers shop there; a cause, e.g. migration of new people into town who have no market ties; or convenience, fixed prices, wider choice, changing tastes of the young an ethnography named with author, group and place, e.g. Malinowski, Trobriand Islands, the Kula; similarity explained, e.g. both show exchange creating lasting relationships; difference explained, e.g. the Kula is ceremonial with no market price, while the yapa is part of commercial trade; concept used in the comparison

2.4

3.1

Mark with the markbands: [13-15] clearly focused on the question, key concepts used accurately, ethnographic material in detail (author, place, group), different perspectives and theories evaluated, well-developed critical analysis, different perspectives evaluated, a reasoned conclusion; [10-12] focused, mostly accurate knowledge, analysis with some evaluation; [7-9] some focus, relevant knowledge, mostly narrative or description with limited analysis; [4-6] little focus, limited knowledge, mostly narrative; [1-3] little understanding of the question. Points that may be included: accurate use of the unseen text with short quotations; an ethnography in detail: author, group, place, date; concept of exchange explained: gift, reciprocity, market; Mauss on obligation to give, receive and repay; similarities explained; differences explained, e.g. commercial vs ceremonial, personal vs impersonal; change and power in both cases; a clear conclusion on what the comparison shows
