Individual differences

International Baccalaureate · IB Diploma · Sports, Exercise and Health Science · SL · Vocabulary in context

Word	Example
personality /ˌpɜːsəˈnælɪti/	Your personality is the way you usually think, feel and act.
trait theory	Trait theory says people have fixed ways of behaving.
extrovert	An extrovert is outgoing and enjoys loud, busy team games.
introvert	An introvert is quiet and may enjoy calm sports such as archery.
big Five /bɪg faɪv/	The big Five describes personality with five traits.
conscientiousness /ˌkɒnsɪˈenʃəsnəs/	A person high in conscientiousness is careful and well organised.
neuroticism /njuːˈrɒtɪsɪzəm/	A person high in neuroticism often feels worried or upset.
interactionist approach	The interactionist approach says behaviour depends on both the person and the situation.
iceberg profile	The iceberg profile shows top athletes with high energy and low bad moods.
mental toughness	Mental toughness helps an athlete stay strong under pressure.
perfectionism	Perfectionism means setting very high standards for yourself.

exercises.lol exercises.com.cn

Word	Example
relative age effect	In the relative age effect, children born early in the year are picked more often for teams.
maturation	Maturation is how the body grows and develops.
developmental model of sport participation	The developmental model of sport participation says children should try many sports first.
early specialisation	Early specialisation means training in one sport from a young age.