Writing a Review

What we will cover

- 1 Describe & judge
- 2 Support your opinions
- 3 Structure
- 4 End with a recommendation

1 Approach

Describe and judge

- describe 描述: what the film, book or place is like
- judge: your opinion 观点 – balance both

Support every judgement with a concrete detail.

Review: describe, judge, and recommend

Support your opinions

Give reasons & examples from your experience to make your view believable.

Structure and recommendation

What I'm reviewing

Describe & evaluate 评价

Recommendation 建议

Write in a friendly but clear style for a general reader.

End with a clear recommendation:
"I'd recommend this to anyone who likes adventure."

Recap

Worked example – a balanced review

Improve this review line: “The film was good. I liked it. You should watch it.”

- “Good” and “liked” give no information – a review must say why.
- A good review is balanced: praise and criticism make it trustworthy.
- “The acting is superb – Chen makes every silence count – though the ending is rushed and left me unconvinced.”
- Finish with a clear recommendation, and say who would enjoy it.

Replace every “good” with a reason and an example. A review that praises everything reads like an advert; one honest criticism makes the praise believable.

Topic 7 – key takeaways

1 Two jobs
